WE OWE GRATITUDE

To the English Department:

We find it difficult to think of words to express our thanks to you. Your efforts have not been in vain for from your inspiring day-to-day instruction, we have grasped the true importance of mastering a command of the English Language.

We know your task has not been an easy one, but the loyalty, devotion, and inspiration given us will long live in our hearts and minds. You will never be forgotten.

With our sincere thanks, we, The Staff of the 1962 "Lion," dedicate this edition to the English Department.

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Through the portals of P. W. Moore High School a group of bewildered freshmen entered, four years ago, embarking on the second level of their learning experience. Behind these doors we have acquired knowledge day-by-day, week-by-week, and year-by-year. We have experienced the heights of success, happiness and achievement and the depths of sadness, frustration and defeat, all of which are an integral part of learning. We have learned how to live with ourselves and with others.

The portals close behind us in June and we shall find ourselves outside the protective solicitude of our Alma Mater. For we shall have graduated.

There are other doors to be opened as we enter into a new phase of learning, for life itself is composed of doors to be opened by the enterprising and inquisitive.

ADMINISTRATION

C. R. PAIGE, PRINCIPAL

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

LIFE'S WORK

Whether or not one leads a life of real service to his fellowman, to his country, and to his God will largely depend upon his answer to the question, "What does the world owe me"? If in his heart, he can answer the question in the negative- "The world owes me nothing", he will be in the position to appreciate and enjoy all the beauty and wonders of creation and all the blessings and problems of life in whatever life's worth he may find himself. Every task will be an opportunity for service and every job done will be a contribution to the welfare of society. His compensation will be the greatest of all rewards- "Well done thou good and faithful servant".

We congratulate you upon your graduation from P. W. Moore High School and trust that your experiences here have prepared, encouraged, and inspired you for an abundant life of service, happiness, and success. Wherever you go, we pray that the Good Lord above will go with you and all of your undertakings.
